Now fully mature, this is a remarkable full-bodied rich and plush Beaujolais-Villages that has nothing to do with the regular wines sold under this name. Closer to a Northern Rhone wine than a red Burgundy it has a dense structure and savory complexity, even a touch of old balsamic vinegar. Drink or hold.

Ripe, earthy and meaty, this is an imposing and expressive Moulin-a-Vent with plenty of healthy tannins balancing the rich body. The imposing, moderately dry and delicately balsamic finish completes the excellent picture. Sustainable. Drink or hold.

This single-village wine has a delicious combination of bright red berry fruit, gentle tannins and a lively mineral acidity. Excellent winemaking means this still has stacks of freshness. Sustainable. Drink or hold.

The fresh nose of lemon blossom pulls you into this sleek and rather elegant medium-bodied chardonnay with no perceptible oak, but good depth through the clean and precise finish. Sustainable. Drink or hold.

A crisp and zesty Fleurie with some sappy tannin behind the ripe red cherry, strawberry and summer flower aromas. This may well improve with further maturation in bottle, because there's nothing green there. Sustainable. Drink or hold.
